Fall Apart

Cory Wells

You're the crooked picture on my wall
The one piece of you that I will never lose
I try so hard to find my way back home
I can't ignore my dreams of you
I toss and turn all night
And I forever know you're somewhere else
I think of you and I just fall apart

Yeah I just fall apart
And I would hold myself together
If I had more than half a heart
But I just fall apart

I wanna hold you in my arms
And let you move me
I feel nothing now. It's all my fault
So I try and try and it's just never enough
It's breaking me down just pressing me right back to the ground
And I'm falling apart. All alone in the dark
Just picking through my broken heart
And it's just never enough

It's just never enough
For you. For me
I'm just never enough

What kind of man would do
What I've put myself through?
But I remember you
I think of you and I just fall apart

I try to put a number to my pain
On a scale of "1" to "what remains."
I close my eyes at night
I think of you and I just fall apart

And I just fall apart
And I would hold myself together
If I had more than half a heart
And I just fall apart
And I just fall apart
And I would put us back together
If you would only let me start
And I just fall apart

You're the crooked picture on my wall
The one piece of you that I will never lose
I try so hard to find my way back home
I can't ignore my dreams of you
I toss and turn all night
And I forever know you're somewhere else
I think of you and I just fall apart
