

Interdimensional

Cosmo Sheldrake

It was interdimensional
It was only the moon and me
It was past pataphysical
It was what set the tune in G

It was long irresistible
Like a thorn in a blossom tree
All was lost, imperceptible
It was nothing if not serene

I wasn't big
I wasn't small
I wasn't anyone at all

It was multidirectional
Wasn't there to determine why
It was plainly invisible
Like the depth of the blue sky

I was whole, indivisible
But you asked me if you could try
I was no individual
There was not even you or I

I wasn't big
I wasn't small
I wasn't anyone at all

Up above and barefoot
My feet were on the cold ground
I looked a little harder
Life was blooming all around
Undulating order
My ears were bathed in strange sounding tunes

Up above and barefoot
My feet were on the cold ground
I looked a little harder
Life was blooming all around
Undulating order
My ears were bathed in strange sounding tunes

Drop in the ocean
Oh, so benevolent
Plucked from the eyebrow
Of some resplendement
Tongue tied eloquence
Dropped in the deeper end
Man overboard at sea in bewilderment
Man overboard at sea in bewilderment
Man overboard at sea in bewilderment
Man overboard at sea in bewilderment
Over borders lost in the wilderness

It was interdimensional
It was only the moon and me
It was past pataphysical

It what set the tune in G

It was long irresistible
All was lost, imperceptible
It was nothing if not serene

I wasn't big
I wasn't anyone at all

I wasn't big
I wasn't anyone at all

I wasn't anyone at all
