Traitor

Count Raven

The rats start to scream, you are threatening their dream They want peace and quiet, on their way to eternal night You can't be your own, it will make the others moan They plot and they scheme, they must kill every dream

All around looking for another reason They must destroy someone, committed to a treason Traitor

Goodnight to you, a bedtime story I tell it's true Under the sun nothing's new, nothing's won A philosophy, that holds no solutional key Go to work and get payed, don't ask for more they say

A wageslave that's all you ever be They steal your life and leave you in misery Traitors

The world seems chaos and confusion Someone gains on this illusion Just one life, in love's name you had it Still you dare refusing to live it

Strange reality, you work your life away Killing yourself, just to pass another day That's not how the world was meant to be It's easy to see, still we don't, it's a pity

All around looking for another reason All around you hear the nonsense reason Traitor, traitor, traitor

No wonder you feel sick inside
It hurts so much, you have no place to hide
Come with me I got the key to your heart
Travel through time and space in my time warp

A storm blows up outside, it's coming, it's coming The rats, they hide inside, they're running, they're running But we are not afraid, we know why, we know why Our time has finally come, I say yeahhh
