

Friday Night Alone

Count Your Blessings

She is just waking up, she looks gorgeous
It's Friday night, and he's out of sight again
Will someone tell me what he's thinking?
Apparently he needed alone time with all of his friends
And she's just not one in the crowd
It breaks my heart to hear this, over and over

Why can't she see,
What's in front of her, when it's me?
Why can't she see,
She'll never spend another Friday night alone, when it's me?

When will she learn he's such an idiot?
It's ok for his girlfriend, to be his best friend
Cause she's mine, and when he messes up
I'm the one whose there to clean up
And hope you know that girls turn on a dime
And he's not worth the price she's paying

And I adore every little thing about you
And alone time is all I ever wanted from you

Why can't she see,
What's in front of her, when it's me?
Why can't she see,
She'll never spend another Friday night alone, when it's me?

When will she learn he's such an idiot?
It's ok for his girlfriend, to be his best friend
Cause she's mine, and when he messes up
I'm the one whose there to clean up
And hope you know that girls turn on a dime
And he's not worth the price she's paying

We can go back and forth all night
When it all comes down to
I need you, I want you by my side
And it won't change a thing between us darling
I wanna show you off for the world to see

When will you learn? (3x)

When will she learn he's such an idiot?
It's ok for his girlfriend, to be his best friend
Cause she's mine, and when he messes up
I'm the one whose there to clean up
And hope you know that girls turn on a dime
And he's not worth the price she's paying

So I'll be the one to bring her some change
