

The Year I Disappeared

Courage My Love

I'm still trying to fit in to my old life before I ever laid eyes on you

I still think of you awake at night hoping I'm on your mind too

What we had may have been once in a lifetime

All I have now are memories of when you were all mine

I still feel you, see you, breathe you in

I still need you here

This could be the year I disappear

This could be the year I disappear

This could be the year I disappear

I hate falling asleep without you, dreaming of keeping you here

I hate writing these songs about you knowing you will never hear them

What we had may have been once in a lifetime

All I have now are memories of when you were all mine

I still feel you, see you, breathe you in

I still need you here

This could be the year I disappear

This could be the year I disappear

This could be the year I disappear

I have changed now

For better or for worse

I'll never be the same now

I hope you hear these words

I still feel you, see you, breathe you in

I still need you here

This could be the year I disappear

This could be the year I disappear

I still feel you

This could be the year I disappear

I still need you here

This could be the year I disappear