

I saw water pouring out your open eye lids
And I saw my fingers melting to the bone
You were speaking but I swear I couldn't hear a word you said
Oh my darling it's late
And I don't think I should stay too long

But I saw you in my dream last night
As I stood alone

When I was three I watched the world go up in flames
As you dug a tunnel underneath it all
We laid down and watched as everybody tried to stay alive
But when we came out again they had all burnt to the ash filled ground

But I saw you in my dream last night
As we stood alone

I am calling out, falling in deep
I know I still shout in the middle of my sleep
I'm calling out, forgetting how your voice sounds
I am poorly designed
I lay here on the ground as
I am calling out, falling in deep
I know I still shout in the middle of my sleep
I'm calling out, forgetting how your voice sounds
I am poorly designed
I lay here on the ground as
I am calling out, falling in deep
I know I still shout in the middle of my sleep
I'm calling out, forgetting how your voice sounds