

Maybe

Craig David

Maybe I was too afraid with you to truly open up
Used to make up lame excuses, couldn't deal with all that stuff
Now I'm tryna find a piece of me still hidden in the dark
The voice of an old stranger, of an angel I forgot

Maybe a little more patience
Maybe a little more time
Maybe you'd still be here in my arms
Just maybe
Maybe if I tried a little bit harder
Maybe if I gave a little bit more
Maybe a piece of me's still in your heart
Just maybe, just maybe

Our fairy tale ran out of pages
It's funny how after all this time
I'm still running through all the memories
Of how we used to be so in love
It breaks my heart to say this 'Cause I know I should be over you
But part of me's still waiting, waiting
For you, for you maybe to come back home

Maybe a little more patience
Maybe a little more time
Maybe you'd still be here in my arms
Just maybe
Maybe if I tried a little bit harder
Maybe if I gave a little bit more
Maybe a piece of me's still in your heart
Just maybe, just maybe

Maybe I was just a little, just a little bit too hasty
Maybe if I settled down with you, we'd be here holding a baby
A little boy, a little girl, a whole new life, a whole new world
As I sing this song it's got me thinking, if I had a daughter she'd be a daddy's girl, oh

Maybe a little more patience
Maybe a little more time
Maybe you'd still be here in my arms
Just maybe
Maybe if I tried a little bit harder
Maybe if I gave a little bit more
Maybe a piece of me's still in your heart
Just maybe, just maybe
Oh yeah
Just maybe
