The Echoes Of Thought

Crimson Moonlight

Feel the wish of the thought to break through, break through every hindrance, like the soul longs to live for ever. The walking continues now slowly now fast It has always been bordered by feelings, hindrances and the plague of doubt. But what in this is recollection? What does this mean?

The echoes of thoughts are heard in the emptiness that used to be so full of chaos.

The thought wants to break through to set out and explore every part of the big and different existence that was once so full of meaning, but is now sheer emptiness.

Is this the goal of the walk?

Is it to this void the thought will break.

Perhaps.

What is yet space, unexplored, comes to view and we catch a hint of what is further away in the remote distance.

But it disappears as quickly as it appeared what is further away in the remote distance. But it disappears as quickly as it appeared and what is our daily business is chained and locked to the moment for the time being But what in this is recollection? Have we been here before?

We are still fed with the already known, The spoils of everyday life.

The power is in their hands