March of the Ignorant

Crown the Empire

You could pray for forty days to save your soul
And you could move a world away and live alone
Lives are redefined one clue to another
Eyes shut open wide if I discover one

You could fly through time and space in your hotel
Or you could live your parents life and lose yourself
Lives are redefined one clue to another
Eyes shut open wide if I discover one

Ignorance is marching by the sides of what we say
When everybody's fighting in their own crusade
Nobody's got time to question God in fear and faith
Everybody's dying while we're fighting our crusade

You could fear what you're too scared to understand
Or you could open up your mind and breathe it in
Lives are redefined one clue to another
Eyes shut open wide if I discover one

Ignorance is marching by the sides of what we say
When everybody's fighting in their own crusade
Nobody's got time to question God in fear and faith
Everybody's dying while we're fighting our crusade
