

I've been thinking about you for a few centuries now
You've ambled through my head, your sighs play in the wind
Above the stones of that abandoned castle where we lived

In another life, standing by your side
Throughout all the ruins where we used to run and hide
See you in the waves, crashing like our fears
When we were alive I knew your voice was all I wanted in my ear s