

Hobo Night Stalker

Cuff the Duke

This passion I have
Dwindled this past year
The time it took to find out who I am
Baby you were right I should think about it now and then
This spray paint on these walls
The story of us all
The trouble with the truth there are no lies
Baby you were right
I should think about it once or twice

As we open up to the world in front of us
A thousand voices silenced but all heard
Baby you were right I should think about it more often
This love I have for you
You can question without proof
I've held my breath for years I must let go
Baby you were right I should think about it now and then