

I've been trying hard to keep the static low drown out the troubles you know he's going to call everyday and way our distance always grows further and further so close to letting go reach out a hand to me it's not over

keep all our memories bring them closer

and I wonder how you sleep at night you know that it's not just alright
'cause static is so far from me

I've been trying hard to get you all alone seems like the good days are never going to come everything you say I hear that awful tone you're just so tired those words are not your own don't let them catch you those friends that you wear (?) they creep all around you you're never prepared

and I wonder how you sleep at night
you know that it's not just alright
'cause static is so far from me

and I wonder how you sleep at night
you know that it's not just alright
'cause static is so far from me