

Rose

currents

I'm staring at the sun
Wondering where the time has gone
Cause I can honestly say that the way I feel
Is something more than I have ever felt before
I can never find the words to say
How much I care
And never do enough to try and make you aware
How much you really mean to me

Love's a funny thing
It creeps behind and turns your head to a window
Becoming tongue-tied too nervous to look inside
Because you can't believe your eyes

I don't know where to turn
But like a child chasing the sun
I felt its rays kiss my skin
I'm not afraid of being hurt again

Holding her in my arms is where I'm meant to be
As everything fades away and it's just her
See, love's a funny thing
It traps you inside
It holds on tight
And never lets you go
Cause these past two years I have lived in fear
Been through hell and back and tried to disappear
But when I woke up
I saw you standing there and I was so starstruck

I'm hoping one day I'd get lost in your eyes
Let the whole world disappear
I hoped that one day I'd get lost in your eyes
Let the world fall apart at our feet
I'm staring at the sun

You see, love's a funny thing
It traps you inside
It holds on tight
And never lets you go
Cause these past two years I have lived in fear
Been through hell and back and tried to disappear

But when I woke up
I saw you standing there and I was so starstruck

I'm staring at the sun