

A Love So Fine

Cut Worms

Deep in your heart
There's a love that has only started
To grow
And is so, that it's always in bloom

What a love can be
Close your eyes and I think you'll see
It my way warm and clear
As a day in June

All of the thousand ways all the
Countless days how they all repeat
All seem to come up in waves like a
Fire that rages alone in the street

Out in the high rises watching from
Someone else's life, someone else's
Sorrow
Down on the sidewalk they're walking
In ordinary life, ordinary sorrow

Don't they want to know something
Worth holding onto?

Search in your mind
Look around and I think you'll find
It's all true
And it won't be so bad
No...

Take your time
Help yourself to as much of mine
As you like
And you won't be so sad
No...

All of the thousand ways all the
Countless days how they all repeat
All seem to come up in waves like a
Fire that rages alone in the street

Out in the high rises watching from
Someone else's life, Others of Tomorrow
Down on the sidewalk they're walking
In ordinary life, ordinary sorrow

Don't they want to know something
Worth holding onto?

Holding on to
A love so fine
Holding on to
A love that's mine
Holding on to
A love so fine
Holding on to
A love that's mine

Holding on to
A love so fine
Holding on to
A love that's mine
Holding on to
A love so fine
Holding on to
A love that's mine

Yeah yeah yeah
Yeah yeah
