

Jealousy

Daggers

Deep blue eyes they discover me,
Taking too much time to discover me,
And you moved on and lined through reality,
Taking the distant lies for recovery.

They put tradition on you,
You put conditions on me,
You're so suspicious you make me worry,
I'm just a visitor here,
There's nothing sinister here,
It's just too loud to say I'm sorry.

You set me up for the last time, don't you know,
That I could never apologize,
You knock me over for the last time, don't you know,
You'll never make me apologize.

I don't want to say what you already know,
'Cause you know, yeah you know,
Jealousy is killing me, it's making me old,
I'm not old, I'm not old,
Jealousy
You keep looking out, you keep looking up
Jealousy

Who am I, if you know me,
My history is going to follow me,
Keep on running blind through the misery,
Oh please tell me why you never trust me.

I know it better than this,
A whisper looks like a kiss,
But now I'm wishing you never saw me,
And if it's easy to do,
They'll make a fool out of you,
So don't you listen to all their stories.

You set me up for the last time, don't you know,
You're going to have to apologize,
So knock me out like the first time,
And you won't have to apologize.

I don't want to say what you already know,
'Cause you know, yeah you know,
Jealousy is killing me, it's making me old,
I'm not old, I'm not old,
Jealousy
You keep looking out, you keep looking up
Jealousy

You set me up for the last time, don't you know,
That I could never apologize,
You knock me over for the last time, don't you know,
You'll never make me apologize.

I don't want to say what you already know,
'Cause you know, yeah you know,

Jealousy is killing me, it's making me old,
I'm not old, I'm not old,
Jealousy
You keep looking out, you keep looking up
Jealousy
