

City

Dan Bern

You say the city has changed, well maybe it's true
Y'say everything moves too fast down the avenue Y'say you just don't get that thrill, tea for two
You say the city has changed, well maybe it's you.

You've been east side, west side, up and down, all around the town
Stomped through your old stomping grounds, cracked open your old crown Y'say the sidewalks are made of concrete 'stead of mountain dew
You say the city has changed, well maybe it's you.

Small-town boy you always thought you were a big-town man
Maybe your orchestra is just a rag-time band

You say the city looks different, it's somehow lost its charm
Fire engine fly by with its annoying alarm
Did the angels ever really look this sad and blue?
You say the city has changed, well maybe it's you.
