

He Knows

Dan Bremnes

I know you struggle and you're wrestling with unbelief
You feel the fire growing cold
Your broken heart is beating heavy like the air you breathe
You're in this valley all alone
So where do you turn?
Where do you go?

Oh He knows every pain every tear you've cried
Every single part of you
And He knows every doubt, every fear that you fight
The battles you've been going through
And when it feels like you're holding the world on your shoulders
Just let go and trust Him, 'cause He knows

Sometimes in life, we taste the bitterness of suffering
It always leaves us asking why
But I believe there's a reason for everything
If we could see through His eyes

'Cause He knows every pain every tear you've cried
Every single part of you
And He knows every doubt, every fear that you fight
The battles you've been going through
And when it feels like you're holding the world on your shoulders
Just let go and trust Him, 'cause He knows

He knows right where you are
He shows you in your weakest hour
He's making something new with your broken heart
Your broken heart

Oh He knows every pain every tear you've cried
Every single part of you
And He knows every doubt, every fear that you fight
The battles you've been going through
And when it feels like you're holding the world on your shoulders
And it feels like you're holding the world on your shoulders
Let go and trust Him
Believe that He loves you, 'cause He knows

Oh He knows
Yea He knows