

Minefield

Dan Bull

I've never been, I've never been that good at love
Try as I might, try as I might, I'll fuck it up
Let me talk to you for a minute

I try to find the right time to say the right line the right place
Eye to eye, eyes aligned with my face
It wasn't easy, taking that audacious step
How could I talk, when you took away my breath?
Feels like yesterday that you said yes to me
'Till our friends were there, then you rejected me
"I love you as a friend!" - you said condescendingly
Knowing full well you were more than a friend to me
You must see how much I respect you
No casual crush, just the lust to protect you
Sat here in tears probably doesn't affect you
I braved the storm only to get wet through
It's a rare occasion that I open my heart
To invite someone in, should've known from the start
Think it's only skin-deep? You don't know the half
I make no bones that it's blown me apart
My hopes were held up on the flimsiest scaffold
You kicked out my legs, watched the whole thing collapse
I've seen you go back to that loser who abused you
But you still think there's no way I can factor in your future
It reflects the mirror back on myself
As my image cracks, and that's bad for my health
You've loved fat twattish bastards as well
So why do I still have no chance in hell?

Whoops, I blew up another mine
But nevermind, I get up, and I'm fine
I'm not crying, something's stuck in my eye
I just want somebody I can tuck in at night
Whoops, I blew up another mine
But nevermind, I get up, and I'm fine
I'm not crying, something's stuck in my eye
Look, I don't suppose we could give us another try?

I've never been, I've never been that good at love
I'm not good at love
Try as I might, try as I might, I'll fuck it up
I fucked it up again
I've never been, I've never been that good at love
I'm not good at love
Try as I might, try as I might, I'll fuck it up
I fucked it up again

Whoops, I blew up another mine
But nevermind, I get up, and I'm fine
I'm not crying, something's stuck in my eye
Look, I don't suppose we could give us another try?
Whoops, I blew up another mine
But nevermind, I get up, and I'm fine
I'm not crying, something's stuck in my eye
It's tough to adjust, so I'll just say goodbye

I've never been, I've never been that good at love, love, love, love

Try as I might, try as I might, I'll fuck it up, I'll fuck it up