

Together

Dan Croll

I've been riding shotgun for so long
I've lost track of how many times I could've been the one
I too have played the game, I've made a call
And every time I've spun the wheel I've risked it all

But what a journey
What a laugh
What a time you had here together
Though all is black and bleak
At least you share a seat up there together
At least you're together

I've lost a few before but none like this
Such an obvious way to turn, so easily missed
So wherever you end up, wherever you go
I'm sure you'll be able to give them one hell of a show

'Cause what a journey
What a laugh
What a time you had here together
Though all is black and bleak
At least you share a seat up there together
At least you're together

At least you're together
At least you're together
At least you're together
