

Sometimes Love Is Not Enough

Dan Hill

Sometimes love is not enough
To drive the pain away
I can feel in your touch
The words you can not say
And we belong together
But we're better off apart
And sometimes love is not enough
Sometimes love just breaks your heart

We have changed in oh, so many ways
And it hurts to realise
That the dreams that once defined us
Have become a battle line
Seems we've always been together
We try so hard to live this life, oh girl
Sometimes love is not enough
Sometimes love don't make it right

We were like two words colliding
And we knew it from the start
We made love like strangers on some desert island
Burned our bridges on the run, but that only we could know
It's the same with everyone in the end you are alone

But sometimes love is not enough
Baby please, don't ask me why
You know the truth just turns to us
And it's so hard to say goodbye
It breaks my heart to lose you now
I know I'll love you all my life, oh
But sometimes is not enough, oh
But sometimes love is not enough
But sometimes love don't make it right
Oh oh oh
