

For Winter

Daniel Merriweather

When there's clouds there's always rain
When there's tears there's always pain
So I'm leaving no holding back again
Cause I'm flying south for winter

I know I should just hold on
I know I should just be strong
I've been strong for far too long
I'm flying south for winter

See these hands, I've used for wrong
See these feet, they've walked so long
I've seen that place, I been there, gone
Now I'm flying south for winter

Tell me why you taught me none
Now just look what I have done
Take my wounds and make them gone
I'm flying south for winter

Ill find a place where I can rest
Take these worries off my chest
Done all I can, I've tried my best
I'm flying south for winter

Turn this water in to wine
Drown my sorrow one last time
Cause tomorrow the sun will shine
I'm flying south for winter

One day you'll wake and I'll be gone
From this place I been so long
And I'll pray you'll hear my song
When your flying south for winter
