

Goodbye Summer

Danielle Bradbery

He pulled into that parking lot with them out of state tags
I fell in love before he even unpacked his bags
One look, one smile, one 'What's your name?'
One 'What you doing later? Wanna grab a drink?'

And it was hello summer, goodbye to my heart
Blue skies and blue eyes, a hell of a way to start
Letting him go would be the hardest part
Hello summer, goodbye to my heart
To my heart

And who knew that one drink could turn into five?
Crazy how June burned into July
Tryna keep September from creeping in my head
I knew what I was getting into the minute I said

And it was hello summer, goodbye to my heart
Blue skies and blue eyes, a hell of a way to start
Letting him go would be the hardest part
Hello summer, goodbye to my heart
To my heart, oh yeah

Yeah, he packed his bags, filled his tank with gas
Man, it went by so fast
Too good to last, yeah, just like that

It was goodbye summer, you tore me apart
Blue skies and blue eyes fade into the dark
Letting go is the hardest part

Hello summer, goodbye to my heart
Blue skies and blue eyes, a hell of a way to start
Letting him go will be the hardest part
Goodbye summer, hello to my broken heart
My broken heart, my broken heart
To my broken heart, yeah

Goodbye summer
