

Messy

Danielle Bradbery

Lately, we're strangers
In a house for two, we're both alone
It's getting cold
Speaking out of anger
It's like silence or shouting's the only way
To communicate

Watching me from the corner of your eye
Every time we fight, you keep making sure you made me cry

Yeah, we're sleeping in the bed that we ain't sharing
Remember when we cared and we fixed it before we fell asleep?
These days it's only awkward conversation
Never really saying much of anything
My head wants to just break it clean
But my heart knows it's gonna be so messy

Your mom's place
Is my second home, it's where I go to find some rest
It's where we met
I can't even think
About my younger brother, 'cause he still looks up to you
He'll lose you too

Yeah, we're sleeping in the bed that we ain't sharing
Remember when we cared and we fixed it before we fell asleep?
These days it's only awkward conversation
Never really saying much of anything
My head wants to just break it clean
But my heart knows it's gonna be so messy

Gotta stop doing this to each other
We ain't acting like lovers
I know what I gotta do
So why is that so hard to do?
When we're sleeping in the bed that we ain't sharing, oh

Yeah, we're sleeping in the bed that we ain't sharing
Remember when we cared and we fixed it before we fell asleep?
These days it's only awkward conversation
Never really saying much of anything
My head wants to just break it clean
But my heart knows it's gonna be so messy

So messy
So messy
