

RIGHT FROM WRONG

Danny Brown

Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong

What we on? Put yourself above everyone, you'll be alone
Need to humble yourself or find someone else
Just counted up the cards and it wasn't a full deck
Had to better myself from grudges once kept
Had to take those steps to get help for my health
Now we back on road, just cracked the code
Practice discipline, situations, you might fold
Stop worrying 'bout shit you know you can't control
Only get one life so stick to your goals
Ain't too concerned when bridges got burned
'Cause I'm on my own path and that's a lesson get learned
'Til the urn filled with ash, I'm focusing on cash
'Cause this watch cost too much to spend time I don't have Don't make me laugh 'cause I can get petty
'Cause it's lonely at the top and the crown is too heavy

(Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong)
What you missing, man? Could've been too late to say
(Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong)
What you missing, man? Feel like it's too late (Oh)
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong

Acting brand new, that's what the money'll do
Remember them days we used to share shoes?
Now I got more kicks than a baby in mother stomach
While you niggas just a crumb in a world where the rich run it
Keep it a hunnid, everything, been done it
But who got your back when everyone fronting?
Hate what they don't understand, that's something to come to terms with Respect ain't given, it's something, you gotta earn it
Hate then replicate, trace and duplicate
Ain't about who did it first, it's about who got paid
Made my own lane, can't complain when things change
'Cause nothing stay the same, just something you can't explain
So continue on the journey and focus on what's ahead
'Cause they run with the lies when the truth ain't got legs
So continue on the journey and focus on what's ahead
'Cause they run with the lies when the truth ain't got legs

(Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong)
What you missing, man? Could've been too late to say
(Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong)
What you missing, man? Feel like it's too late (Oh)
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong

A half-smile you give, like a shy offering
Trying to convince yourself that the dust hasn't been spent yet
That maybe it'll magically strike someday
What if the saltshaker magically refills at the end of the day?
What if magic reinvents itself if you let it in?

Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, never knew right from wrong
Right from wrong, right from wrong

When did the world become so saturated with stubborn fools anyways?
I swear this time we have together will be unforgettable
This summer won't be like the last one
But sometimes I wake up jealous of no one in particular
Just jealous that there are other ways to live that aren't this
To lighten the jealousy, you compare your star power to others
You jot down all the reasons you're goated
Stopping halfway through because
You believe true icons don't reflect on their success
So arbitrarily, difunctionally
But it's hard to make the jealousy turn into actual inspiration
That's what I need, inspiration
And everything will be restored
