

Another You

Danny Worsnop

I could write a song, I could paint a perfect picture of a sunrise in an hour or two
I could fly a plane faster than the speed of sound right into space if you want me to
I could walk on water, make a billion dollars, burn it, then make every single penny of it back again
I could close my eyes and fight an alligator with both hands tied behind my back and I would win

But I could never find another you
Another shooting star
Another holder of my heart
Another light in the dark
Another love me like you do
No I could never find another you
Another perfect sound
Another keep me on the ground
Another up when I'm down
Another way that you move
No I could never find another you

I could move a mountain, I could pick the moon right out of the sky and set it next to you
I could run in place and stop the earth rotating, go back in time and rule the world if I wanted to
I could hold my breath and be a giant stomping all around, and all the people would love it
Harness all the power of the sun and save the universe, and never even break a sweat

But I could never find another you
Another shooting star
Another holder of my heart
Another light in the dark
Another love me like you do
No I could never find another you
Another perfect sound
Another keep me on the ground
Another up when I'm down
Another way that you move
No I could never find another you

But baby yeah I must confess
I miss my days of ignorance
Like before you walked through my door
Life was like a wave it seemed
Back and forth so carelessly
But now it's like a storm
And without you I'd rather be alone

Cause I could never find another you
Another shooting star
Another holder of my heart
Another light in the dark
Another love me like you do
No I could never find another you
Another reason to breathe

Another heart on my sleeve
Another better half of me
Another I do
No I could never find another you
