

Coalescence

Dark Fortress

Stasis
Virulent nothing
Incandescence
Too fast to see
Then the cold

Acceleration
Stretching stretching stretching
Photos crawl towards themselves

Rolled up in Planck time
A vague sense of "we"
Down comes his hammer
And entropy trawls
The nascent coalescence
The second law creates it all

Echoes clump to atom sludge
And thus begins
The existence of existence

Electric fields carve geodesics
Drag us along the path of least resistance

Superluminal curling coriolis
All the way down the arrow of time
Towards heat death

It thinks it feels
But it can't see us
In the manifold's iridescent expanse

We stir the coalescence
The second law will never fall
We stir the coalescence
The second law creates it all

Within the breathing web of world lines
Clandestine vectors swell
With unseen luminescence
Within the hidden depths of spacetime
Our remains lie buried
In the essence of the essence

We stir the coalescence
The second law creates it all
We stir the coalescence
The second law will never fall