

Most people spend a life time running from the past
And every dawn they step into, one more day it lasts
Every time they're faced with love the same questions are asked
But it's easier to play the fool than act the role you're cast

So when it's cold inside and you're too numb to feel
And when you ask yourself who you are what you believe
That's where your faith is earned, in the dark when you can't see
Can you believe? Believe in me?
Oh now, now

She was born and raised in a shallow town you won't find on a map
Her memories of it weighed her down and stopped her journey back
Big city lights and solitude that's where she found her mask
But the only lesson she has learned is how to turn her back
Oh she turned her back

So when it's cold inside and you're too numb to breathe
And when you ask yourself what were you sent to achieve
That's where your faith is earned, in the dark when it won't release
Can you believe? Believe in me

If I find love I'll scream it down there's hope for us all
That we can come back from dark places where we've crawled
That we can rise up no disgracing when you fall
Your home's right down the hall, there's a home right down
Hold love

If I find love I'll scream it down there's hope for us all
That we can come back from dark places where we've crawled
That we can rise up no disgracing when you fall
Your home's right down the hall, there's a home right down

Hold love will you hold my love?
Hold love will you, oh now
Hold love will you hold my love?
Hold love will you, oh now
