

They Know How To Grow 'Em

Daryle Singletary

She's got legs all the way up to there
Angel eyes and what a pair
And you know where she's from every time she opens her mouth
I see her sittin' in the front porch swing
Just a shellin those butter-beans
Even in a drought they know how to grow them down south

Is it something in the air something in the water
Cause there's just something bout every southern daughter
With all these figures a body ought to figure it out
Even in a drought they know how to grow them down south

Ain't nothing looks better in a white tank-top
It's the best ever bumper-crop
She's pretty as a picture I hope this picture hangs around
She's starts walkin' stops traffic
It's gotta be something geographic
Even in a drought they know how to grow them down south

Is it something in the air something in the water
Cause there's just something bout every southern daughter
With all these figures a body ought to figure it out
Even in a drought they know how to grow them down south

Is it something in the air something in the water
Cause there's just something bout every southern daughter
With all these figures a body ought to figure it out
Even in a drought they know how to grow them down south

Even in a drought they know how to grow them down south
