

Hanalei

Dave Hause

We built forever at home, forever ain't true
On this dinosaur island of green, the sky's always blue

For now we could stay here, far from the power line hum
For now we could lay here, let the sand cook our skin in the sun

In Hanalei
We could stay
We could sell anything that isn't nailed down
In Hanalei
We could say
We could say the hell with forever and be here together right now

Sunset just came and then went, now a fingernail moon
Packed up and ready to roll, but the flight ain't till noon

For now we could stay here, far from the power line hum
For now we could lay here, let the sand cook our skin in the sun

In Hanalei
We could stay
We could sell anything that isn't nailed down
In Hanalei
We could say
We could say the hell with forever and be here together right now

If we leave now, do we risk breaking the spell?
Can we stay here away from the maddening carousel?

In Hanalei
We could stay
Let's just sell anything that isn't nailed down
In Hanalei
We could stay
In Hanalei

In Hanalei
We could stay
Let's just sell anything that isn't nailed down
In Hanalei
We could stay
We could say the hell with forever
And be here together right now

We built forever at home, forever ain't true
