

Pretty Good Year

Dave Hause

I've been working longer hours watching money streaming in
I've been trusting crooks and liars like I don't have any friends
I've been finding myself praying when I'm deepest in the sin
And reinventing happiness again
I've been reinventing happiness again

It's been painful resolution set to jubilant applause
It's been soaring highs and crushing lows and grinding in my jaw
I've been begging for forgiveness after laying down the law
It's like surgery to get through all the flaws
It's like surgery to get through all the flaws

Will this overture seem dull to all my friends?
Will you love me if I leave you here again?

There's a faith that could tear this whole thing apart
Pour the drinks and we'll cause the dancing to start

I've been standing at a crossroads for what seems like many days
If I go will the house fall down will I burn it if I stay?
Will I be fighting like a coward or running like a brave?
I'll be laughing like a madman either way
Oh I'll be laughing like a madman either way

Will this overture seem dull to all my friends?
Would she love me if I leave her home again?
When the spell breaks we'll go back to work, what then?

There's a faith that could tear this whole thing apart
So pour the drinks and we'll cause the dancing to start

There are lies that could tear this whole thing apart
But there are songs that will beg to keep your heart
There are songs that will beg to keep your heart
To keep your heart