

Glory

David Crosby

When you roam
You're traveling alone
Trying to catch each grain of sand
Slipping through your hands

And the wind
Is weathering your skin
All that's on the outside
Is breaking you in

Let me be
The oil upon your glove
Moving in the creases
Softening what's tough

(Glory) In the blink of an eye
(Glory) In a moment of weakness
(Glory) I will be your armor
(Glory) I will be your witness
(Glory) You can't lose me, no
(Glory) No, you can't lose me

And when the weight
Is layered in rounds
Like Venusian clouds
Can't find your way out

Let me be
Your glory in the sky
Circling your shadow
Cradling the light

(Glory) In the blink of an eye
(Glory) In a moment of weakness
(Glory) I will be your armor
(Glory) I will be your witness
(Glory) You can't lose me
(Glory) You can't lose me

Sleepless night, wake again
The strength of a heart isn't continuing
Let me take your worn hands
If love could lift us then I would carry them

And your shield of skin and bones
Stumbles in the sand to carry you home
Let me be a torch to bear the light
To stock the cellar for the long night

Glory, Glory
Glory, Glory
Glory, Glory
Glory, Glory
Shining glory
Glory, Glory
Glory, Glory
You are a shining glory

Glory, Glory
