The Human Condition

David Dunn

Looking out my window on a Wednesday night
People living there behind their front porch lights
And I don't know a thing about em, they don't know me
Probably on different roads but we share the same street

All I know, all I know, all I know

We all need, we all need a little kindness
There's hurt inside us all
We're not that different, no
We all need, we all need a little kindness
We're out here living
It's the human condition

Every now and then I can hear him shout
The angry old man living two doors down
Screaming at the kids stay off my property
There's probably 80 years of reasons why he's so angry

We all need, we all need a little kindness
There's hurt inside us all
We're not that different, no
We all need, we all need a little kindness
We're out here living
It's the human condition
