

Time Machine

David Hodges

I've been staring out the window
Trying hard to make it clear
What did I do wrong
That made you disappear?

I've been sifting through the pieces
Trying to get back to when
We were young and so in love before the end

But I could turn it all around
I know that I could rebuild it from the ground
If I could go back in time

Six miles of wire
Aluminum parts
I'm making a way back to the start
Circuits are dialed
And batteries charged
I'm building a time machine to your heart

I'm building it
I'm building it
I'm building a time machine to your heart

They say you can't fix what's broken
They say you can't change the past
Can't start over you can't flip the hourglass
They say put the past behind you
That's not good enough for me
I could change and rearrange
Until I'm what you need cause

I could turn it all around
I'd go back and make it right
And rebuild it from the ground
We're gonna make it this time

Six miles of wire
Aluminum parts
I'm making a way back to the start
Circuits are dialed
And batteries charged
I'm building a time machine to your heart

I'm building it
I'm building it
I'm building a time machine to your heart

I'll keep trying
'Til I find the perfect way to undo
Everything I didn't say
Just know that I'll do
Anything it takes to make it to you

Six miles of wire
Aluminum parts
I'm building it

I'm building it

Six miles of wire

Aluminum parts

I'm making a way back to the start

Circuits are dialed

And batteries charged

I'm building a time machine to your heart

I'm building it

I'm building it

I'm building a time machine to your heart

I'm building it

I'm building it

I'm building a time machine to your heart

I'm building a time machine to your heart
