

One Wintry Night

David Phelps

Just a simple maiden with his hands stretched out to God
Saying "Lord Thy will be done.I will abide".
Just a simple stable, looking back it does seem odd
That God himself would enter there inside.

One wintry night the starry universe
Went whirling upside down
And everything that was, was not the same
One wintry night a supernatural birth
Left Heaven and earth spellbound
As the Mysterious Omniscient took a name
Darkness fled from light; wrong was made right
In just one wintry night

Just a simple carpenter who found himself in love
With a girl bearing the child of the Divine
Just a simple manger yet somehow it was enough
To accommodate the God of space and time

One wintry night the starry universe
Went whirling upside down
And everything that was, was not the same
One wintry night a supernatural birth
As the Mysterious Omniscient took a name
Darkness fled from light; wrong was made right
In just one wintry night

Don't you know the angels were breathless
As He stepped down off His throne
Into the cosmos His own hands had made
Don't you know that darkness protested
As its reign was overthrown
And victory was declared with love's display
