

For You

David Ryan Harris

Saturday before the sun is up
I'm out the door and on my way I
Catch the two and then the thirty five
And by six fifteen I'm on the train

Thrity miles till the final stop
And still I have to walk a few more
By the time I finally reach your garden's gate
I have nineteen steps till I'm at your door

And oh I'm afraid
To finally be with you
And when I see your face I know that

There ain't nothing strong enough to keep me away from you
There can be a wall of fire ten feet or higher
I would just walk on for you
Where there once was only room for one
Wherever there will be two

That's why I drive alone all this way for you
To you
For you

Ooooo

Sunday night and I'm at home alone
And I miss the smell of your perfume
Five longs days and four more hours
Till I am there again with you

And oh I'm afraid
To finally be with you
And when I see your face
I know that

There ain't nothing strong enough to keep me away from you
There can be a wall of fire ten feet or higher
And I would walk on through
Where there once was only room for one
Wherever there will be two

That's why I drive alone all this way for you

Seconds make mintues
Make hours make days
I've added it all up a million ways
Multiply that times a fact and when I'm with you
I feel brand new

Girl and that's why I drive all this way for you

'Cause there ain't nothing strong enough to keep me away from you
There can be a wall of fire ten feet or higher
I would just on for you
Where there once was only room for one
Wherever there will be two

That's why I drive alone this way
Just to see your pretty face
Each and every saturday for you
To you
For you
