

You're The Problem

Dax

You don't ever see me how I see myself
And that's a problem
Your hate is a reflection of yourself
And that's a problem
You claim you want respect
But you don't ever show it back
I stay on the defense
Because you're always on attack
You find a way to twist it
And you always tell me lies
Focus on my reaction
And not what you did and why
You're stuck inside your ways
There ain't no way I can correct
I think that you're the problem
And I'm just another man
This relationship's dead

You stay listening to your friends
Give you advice, but they've been single since the day that we met
How they know better, but they struggle
And then keeping no man
Misery loves company, and I'm invested in not paying your debt

Thought you were ride-or-die
You led me on for a country mile
Love-bombed me now my wounds are open and I'm forced to realize
Can't turn no hoe to a wife
No matter how hard that I try

You don't ever see me how I see myself
And that's a problem
Your hate is a reflection of yourself
And that's a problem
You claim you want respect
But you don't ever show it back
I stay on the defense
Because you're always on attack
You find a way to twist it
And you always tell me lies
Focus on my reaction
And not what you did and why
You're stuck inside your ways
There ain't no way I can correct
I think that you're the problem
And I'm just another man
This relationship's dead

Now I'm drinking whiskey
Straight out the bottle
Chasing after the woman
That I originally followed
Time itself is a commodity
With you I feel it's borrowed
Trapped inside of the past
With no promise of a tomorrow ah

"Red flags". Stay waving at me
I stay left on "Read". No reply
Out of pocket responses
You disrespect me out in public
If I'm being honest
You probably got it from your mama
I don't got no time to deal with the drama
I'm too busy
Trying to stack up these commas
To be your punching bag
And deal with your childhood trauma
Swipe on your dating apps
We're done, 'cause
There ain't no changing that
You're broken, projecting the hate you have
And want a man
To come in and be a place mat
Your patience lacks
And expectations ain't reciprocated
Your egos to inflated
Go do better like you're claiming

You don't ever see me how I see myself
And that's a problem
Your hate is a reflection of yourself
And that's a problem
You claim you want respect
But you don't ever show it back
I stay on the defense
Because you're always on attack
You find a way to twist it
And you always tell me lies
Focus on my reaction
And not what you did and why
You're stuck inside your ways
There ain't no way I can correct
I think that you're the problem
And I'm just another man
This relationship's-

Oh me oh my
I'm not your type
You need someone
Who's got no life
You can control
Destroy inside

You don't ever see me how I see myself
And that's a problem
Your hate is a reflection of yourself
And that's a problem
You claim you want respect
But you don't ever show it back
I stay on the defense
Because you're always on attack
You find a way to twist it
And you always tell me lies
Focus on my reaction
And not what you did and why
You're stuck inside your ways
There ain't no way I can correct
I think that you're the problem
And I'm just another man
