Her name was Finula Ginetti
She drank guinness and ate spaghetti
Her dad from Naples
Her mum's from Cary*
When she got drunk, the girl was scary
Then there was Jane Lorenzo
Her father English, her mother Spanish
She very rarely let it go
But when she did, whoa, you'd really know

Then there is Mae Ling Jackson
Her mother Chinese, her father Jamaican
She seems shy but when she's dancing
She likes to be the main attraction
And Krupskaia Adebola
She drinks ice cold vodka and cola
Father Nigerian, mother Siberian
She drinks all night and leaves sober

Then there was Hatsu Dupri
Her father French, mother Japanese
You could tell she spent money
On the latest fashion and technologies
Then there was Johanna Sing
You should see her shake her thing
Father Indian, mother Dutch
You could look but don't touch

The DJ is mixing up the music
The barman is mixing up the drinks
Everybody is mixing with each other
Everybody is mixing with their lovers

Nobody knows who the barman is
He's just the guy mixing up the drinks
He says, "you can call me any name
But when you call my name
Don't call it in vain"
