

Strangers

Dayglow

I've been on my own these days
Trying to figure out the pace
When I don't even know the place, I'm going to
It's gotten to the point one time
I didn't recognize myself
I thought that I was someone else beside you

So where do I go
When I don't even know where I am right now?
And what am I to believe
When things keep getting stranger?
Oh, I know so many strangers

And I tried to organize my fears,
But they didn't change at all
And now they live across the hall from each other
And I made a few friends last week,
And thought I fell in love again
But I'm already in Los Angeles
And they both love one another

So, what do I do
When everything feels new,
But all I want is to feel my age?
And what am I to say
When you feel like a stranger?
Oh, I know so many strangers
And strangers and strangers
I know so many strangers
And strangers and strangers
And everything is stranger
And stranger and stranger
And stranger and stranger
And stranger
