

SPOTLIGHTS

DC the Don

Woke up on the floor today, how did last night go wrong?
She said, welcome to the low life, you're already on I'm washed up from the weekend, I need a second on my own
Like what'd you put in my cup, love? It was already strong
And I'm already gone

I was already gone when I left
In the moment, lost myself getting no rest
You got me just falling, took all the wind from my chest
So gone, lost all control of what's next

Caught us slipping in both angles, catching our worst angles
Speeding all through the hills to go party with more strangers
All them demons around, when we switch up the location
Painting pictures too blurry to make out, we not angels
Moving fast with no pace, just tripping over my laces
Hate it when they surrounding me
She wanna be on the stage but afraid of them backstages
Rather be recognized, I won't needa die nameless, let me know

The spotlight make you nervous? You make me nervous too
You're outside of the ordinary
Don't ever let 'em get a hold of you
The spotlight make you nervous, all them lights keep you blinded, them shades
s
Block me out

My love I carry for you, bring more stress
And I'm sorry, love, I'm so busy using my phone less
It's powered off and now it's just only a black mirror
Reflecting back all of them feelings that I regret
I'm trying to move on, I keep swallowing my anger
Tongue tired, I wrote it down in some more pages
You promised me, baby, it wouldn't change ya
Now all of a sudden, we close strangers

I was already gone when I left
In the moment, lost myself getting no rest
You got me just falling, it took all the wind from my chest
So gone, I lost all control of what's next

The spotlight make you nervous? You make me nervous too
You're outside of the ordinary
Don't ever let 'em get a hold of you
The spotlight make you nervous, all them lights keep you blinded, them shades
