

Skin

Dead!

I'll stay for one more then I should get home
But the taste of her lips are intoxicating
See I'm not the man that you think you see
But your breath on my neck is so convincing
So I'll burn this night and I'll leave you charred
Leave here battered, broken and scarred
One hand on the clock and one hand on your hip
Both hands still turn and they touch and they tick
She said she's fine, tell her I'm a mess
I'm conscious to the fact I'm the best that she'll get
I'm leaving this place alone tonight
Argue with myself what's wrong and right
I'll make a fool for myself and I'm a fool for you
Not a single word I've said has been true
Your presence in my mind is now wearing thin
It's getting cold out here let me wear your skin

Is this how you'll go out, is this how they'll remember you?
Before my lights go out, I will learn to forget you
I'll learn to forget you

Well I've acquired a taste for your bitter side
There's no space for you in my mind
Your eyes are cold and your words don't mean
Anything of value to me
I'm a rogue, I'm a boy, I'm a lifeless thing
My veins pump blood that I can't bleed
This is not the place I'm supposed to be
Here's to tonight, here's to running free

Is this how you'll go out, is this how they'll remember you?
Before my lights go out, I will learn to forget you
I'll learn to forget you

Is this how you'll go out?
