

Let Go

Dean Lewis

Does she love me?
She stands above me in all her grace
I've been reaching for a spark in this fire in her heart
Does she love me?
Is it too late?
Is it too late to stop the flood?
It's already opened up something, I don't want to stop
Does she love me?

'Cause you are the blood that I bleed
We've got the whole world under our feet
When you're tired and you're falling asleep
I don't wanna let go
I don't wanna let go

It creeps in slowly
Stings like poison through my veins
So many questions
So many glances unexplained

'Cause you are the blood that I bleed
We've got the whole world under our feet
When you're tired and you're falling asleep
I don't wanna let go

It's the freedom of falling, it's the way that you smile
It's just a flicker of something that's saying goodbye
It's the thought of tomorrow and the hope it would bring
It's relying on comfort and the way that it stings

'Cause you are the blood that I bleed
We've got the whole world under our feet
But when you're tired and you're falling asleep
I don't wanna let go
'Cause you steal the air that I need
And when you're near me, it gets hard to breathe
But when you're tired and you're falling asleep
I don't wanna let go
I don't wanna let go
