Raise your hands to the sky
On your knees and abide
Don't stare into the sun
The new saviours have come

And you choose your wine Like you choose your friends And you base your life On each passing trend

And I say
No to false claims
No to their aims
No to all of their rules

We've come to save your soul We must regain control It's the end of their reign Our day has come again

You've been blown off course We've come to take you north In the eye of the storm History's been reborn

We've been sent back Surprise attack