

Harmonic Divisor

Death By Stereo

28 times, it became a game
28 times, a man with no name
28 times, a life on the run
28 times, he lived by the gun
Lived by the gun!

I remember when, you told me your name
I remember when, you showed me the way
You always made it back and started again
In a place that you called home

28 times, they threw you away
28 times, they spit in your face
Twenty eight in the number for strength
28 they will never defeat
They will never!

I remember when, you told me your name
I remember when, you showed me the way
You always made it back and started again

I remember when, you told me your name
I remember when, you showed me the way
You always made it back and started again
In a place that you called home
A place that you called home

This is the place where he would not give in to any man
This is the place where I will raise my voice as loud as I can
This is the place where we will break the chains
They will never win

I remember when, you told me your name
I remember when, you showed me the way
You always made it back and started again

I remember when, you told me your name
I remember when, you showed me the way
You always made it back and started again
In a place that you called home
A place that you called home
