

Robinson

Debbie Gibson

Softly the Spring winds whisper to me
Feeling the sadness in the gentle breeze
From the riverbank I see, moving so free
How far will you run? I follow silently

Lock them away with my memories
Retell the tale, the story sounds so sweet
Though the darkness may descend, night will turn to day
Smiling through the tears, I know I'll find a way

Once again we're in the same old place, same time
And I know that I will use the same old line
Don't you know that sometimes simple words, they bring
A miracle, can't you see?

Hold me, baby, I won't let go
Take you to a place we both know
A new world where no one can ever find us
I will have the strength for us both
Fly you to the stars up above
Oh, my love, a dream of love made reality

Just like a stray cat with nowhere to go
Sits in the corner feeling all alone
Gonna hold you in my arms, never be apart
All the things you fear, they feel so far away

Waiting for you at the usual place
Look through the window, staring into space
Wipe it clean so I can see, peeking through the trees
Floating above, the new moon cries to me

Like the dream that lies there waiting for us both
Catch you by surprise, a shock, but then you know
Just like all the spirits in the sky above
We'll be reborn, can't you see?

Hold me, baby, I won't let go
Take, you to a place we both know
Scattered through the heavens a never ending song
I will have the strength for us both
Fly you to the stars up above
Oh, my love, a dream of love made reality

I will have the strength for us both
Fly you to the stars up above
Oh, my love, a dream of love made reality
Oh, my love, a dream of love made reality
