

September

Deborah Cox

I can't believe that a year has passed
It seems like yesterday was that day in September, yeah
Yeah, ooh yeah, I remember the day in September

Listen, we started off as the best of friends
No intention of falling in love again
He held me there in my time of need
My heart was set free, what a sweet memory

The day I fell in love, it was so beautiful
His hands, his tender touch
I remember the day in September
When we fell in love

It was an unexpected night
The sun was somewhere, but out of sight
So familiar, yet unexplored and new
We surrendered to our love in bloom

The day I fell in love, it was so beautiful
His hands, his tender touch
I remember the day in September
When we fell in love

I couldn't believe it was love
The passion we felt between us
The warmth of your touch, it was a night to remember
On the day we fell in love in September

The day I fell in love, it was so beautiful
His hands, his tender touch
I remember the day in September
When we fell in love

I couldn't believe it was love
The passion we felt between us
The warmth of your touch, it was a night to remember
On the day we fell in love in September

The day I fell in love, it was so beautiful
His hands, his tender touch
I remember the day in September
When we fell in love

The day I fell in love
I remember the day in September
When we fell in love
The day I fell in love