Declan J Donovan

One too many cups on the table, 'cause I forget
I don't have to save you the letters of my cigarettes
Don't have to remember to tell you goodbye
Or move your car when it's parked behind mine
One too many cups on the table, since you left

Now I don't have to think about you
You're all that I think about

So how do you let go
When something inside's saying please don't?
How do you let go of someone you got used to holding
When you're waking up
And how do you let go
When all of your heart's begging, please don't
You're in denial 'cause someone you got used to holding
Doesn't need your love anymore

Now I let the sofa hold me till I go to sleep
Haven't changed the locks on the front door in case you need
To come back and take all the things that you left
The hair brush, the perfume, this weight on my chest
Now I let the sofa hold me till I go to sleep

Now I don't have to think about you
You're all that I think about

So how do you let go
When something inside's saying please don't?
How do you let go of someone you got used to holding
When you're waking up
And how do you let go
When all of your heart's begging, please don't
You're in denial 'cause someone you got used to holding
Doesn't need your love anymore

They don't love you anymore
They don't love you anymore
They don't love you anymore

So how do you let go
When something inside's saying please don't?
How do you let go of someone you got used to holding
When you're waking up
So how do you let go
When all of your heart's begging, please don't
You're in denial 'cause someone you got used to holding
Doesn't need your love anymore
