

I know you've been going through a little darkness
And it seems like things won't ever be the same
All the creatures in the forest out to get you
Should be gone before the morning rain
But we can't predict the changes in the weather
That's a thing that even weathermen get wrong
You don't have to bear the world upon your shoulders
Only live there with an honest heart

I know you've been building up a lot of pressure
Getting all up in your head about it
Suffocated by the world around
Trepidation over burning ground
But did you think that we could figure it together?
If your hands would ever wipe away the ashes
Put some colour in this cursed town
You're all I need

Everything is golden
You're all I need
When nothing is a given

I can be there when you're feeling kinda downward
I can catch you if you think you're gonna fall
Through the window where my day resides
Is the ocean of eternal life
And this picture will be burned into our memory
Long before we even go our separate ways
Kiss the corner of your broken smile
Soon the spring will bring the forest fire

Soon the spring will bring the forest fire

Everything is golden
You're all I need
When nothing is a given
You make me see

Everything is golden
You're all I need
When nothing is a given
You make me see
Take me to the river
I'll do my best
To focus on the present
To count each step