

Turning

Demis Roussos

You went away but lately I find
That every day you're here in my mind
Can't stop my thoughts from revolving around every room
My chances are dissolving, like your fading perfume

I'm turning and turning away from this burning inside me
I'm turning and turning but yearning to come back to you
Too late, I see what you meant to me
Memories that you left behind, remind me of love we knew

My love if someday you should return
You'll find someone who's started to learn
I've got just what I wanted, no tears, no ties
But that's why I'm so haunted, now I realize

I'm turning and turning away from this burning inside me
I'm turning and turning but yearning to come back to you
Too late I see, what you meant to me
Memories that you left behind, remind me of love we knew

Turning and turning and learning to live in this lonely way
Turning and turning and learning to live for today

And I'm turning and turning away from this burning inside me
Turning and turning and learning to live for today
I'm turning and turning but yearning to come back to you
Too late, I see what you meant to me
Memories that you left behind, reminds me of the love we knew
