

There Was A Light Here

Demon Hunter

You will find yourself alone inside the garden
Sowing sorrows in the wake of letting go
If you bury all your memories, forgotten
They will grow

If you listen to the weeping of the water
You will hear a voice in harmony below
When you look into the eyes of your daughter
You will know

You may never find the place you're looking for
You may never see her face again this side of Heaven's door
But when the night is at its darkest
In the quiet of your heart, you will know
There was a light here
There was a light
There was a light here

If you offer your devotion to another
Give your life until the oceans overflow
When you find yourself becoming like your mother
You will know

I am no longer a stone
I can't walk into the shadows alone
Take my soul to where the waters atone
Bring me home

You may never find the place you're looking for
You may never see her face again this side of Heaven's door
But when the night is at its darkest
In the quiet of your heart, you will know
There was a light here
There was a light
There was a light here

There was a light
There was a light here
There was a light
There was a light here

There was a light
There was a light here
There was a light
There was a light here

There was a light
There was a light here
There was a light
There was a light here
There was a light

There was a light here
There was a light
There was a light here
There was a light
