

Your Saving Grace

Dennis DeYoung

Flying into solitude
Slowly losing altitude
When my engine stalled
And I began to fall
Suddenly I couldn't steer
No parachute or landing gear
Gone in the dead of night
So I said my prayers and suddenly I saw a light

Shining in the clouds above
Showing me a kind of love
That I'd never known
And I wonder how my heart could ever thank you

You saved me
When I was barely breathing
You saved me
When I was lost in space
And you healed me
Where would I be without you
'Cause you raised me up by

The light of your saving grace
Your saving grace
The light of your saving grace
Your saving grace

And I can't explain
Even in the pouring rain
How your guiding hand
Helped me safely land
So I'm standing here
Having shed my final tear
Knowing that I'm letting go
To all the things I realize I can't control

And I will survive
Certain that to be alive
Is all that we know
And I don't know how my heart could ever thank you

You saved me
When I was barely breathing
You saved me
With the warmth of your embrace
And you healed me
Where would I be without you
'Cause you raised me up by

The light of your saving grace
Your saving grace
The light of your saving grace
Your saving grace

Your saving grace
The light, the light of your saving grace
Your saving grace

Your saving grace
Your saving grace
